

Wheels Up! for EFTPS-OnLine

"Ladies and gentlemen, this is the captain. Welcome aboard and thanks for flying with us. We're at cruising altitude so sit back, relax, and listen to a brief conversation with the U.S. Treasury about the online feature of EFTPS—the free way to make Federal tax payments."

The full conversation with Commissioner Gregg, provided by Sky Radio, can be heard aboard Delta Air Lines flights in March and April. Passengers on American Airlines and Northwest Airlines flights in April will also hear the interview.

Have a pleasant trip!

Why should taxpayers use EFTPS—the Electronic Federal Tax Payment System—rather than paper check?

According to Richard Gregg, the Commissioner of Treasury's Financial Management Service: "It's easier. Americans are strapped for time, and it's very simple to sit down and complete the payment electronically with two clicks of the buttons on your computer."

"It's reliable. The number of times that we have problems with electronic payments versus relying on the mail is sharply different and there is greater accuracy."

How safe is it to pay taxes electronically over the Web?

Again, Commissioner Gregg: "I think it's extremely safe and this year—2002—I paid all of my estimated tax payments using the online version of EFTPS. And I was very comfortable in doing that, knowing that the security we put in place far exceeded industry standards."
